doPlaces.com

CREATED BY LARRY ANDERSON

doPlaces.com is an example of a public use web-based database.

Benefits of Web-Based Applications*:

- No need for extra software on the workstations; just a web browser (it can even work on computers, tablets and smart-phones).
- Everything could run on just one server, so it's easy to maintain and back-up,
- Can be accessible to the public, or not. (Hosting 'in-house' is very inexpensive.)
- Most web hosting services support custom web applications.
- Perfect for when you need to have multi-location remote, or at-home access.
- Easy integration with email, and other advanced web services like Google Maps.

So if you are looking for a truly down-to-business web-based data solution (not just a pretty web page) call me!

With over 30 years of programming & database experience, I have the skills you need.

I also do graphic design (like this brochure) and provide technical support services for a wide variety of computers, most notably Macintosh and Linux computers.
